Harvest Update

June 10, 2015

PSW ALFALFA

Unexpected storms continue to effect Alfalfa harvest in the PSW keeping the pricing on green hay stronger than projected. Growers will finish up 4th cutting over the next few days. The quality is typical for this time of year. The other Western States that provide inventory for the PSW Plant will be in full production this week.

PNW ALFALFA

Washington is completing their weather challenged 1st cutting Alfalfa harvest. We are seeing a lot of rain damaged hay and middle to lower end quality causing pricing on green hay to remain higher than expected.

Early 2nd cutting Alfalfa harvest has begun and, as with 1st, will be spread out over three or four weeks. Growers are expecting a better 2nd cutting as the weather conditions have improved.

TIMOTHY

The 1st cutting Timothy harvest is going strong in both the Kittitas Valley and Columbia Basin. Due to the heat and a good 10 day weather window, growers will be aggressively cutting throughout the week.

The combination of the warmer weather, heavy winds, and intermittent storms during the growing season, has led to increased lodging. We will see a wide range of grades in the 1st cutting harvest.
