Harvest Update

June 1, 2016

ALFALFA

In the Pacific Northwest, 1st cutting is finishing up and baling will be completed towards the end of the week. Some areas in the South Columbia Basin of Washington State are expected to begin 2nd cutting in the next 3-4 days.

Harvest has just begun in Klamath Falls, Oregon, and will continue into the weekend. Growers in Christmas Valley are expected to start their 1st cutting later in the month.

New Mexico 1st cutting is in full swing, and weather has been favorable thus far, giving opportunity for high quality hay.

The Pacific Southwest is nearing the end of 3rd cutting harvest, with a small amount left to bale. Growers in some areas of the PSW were able to begin their 4th cutting this week.

Temperatures are expected to be well over 100° for the next 8 days.

TIMOTHY

Warm weather has brought early Timothy harvest in all areas of the Columbia Basin and Kittitas Valley. Growers in the North and South Basin of Washington State are starting 1st cutting this week to take advantage of the weather.

STRAW

Growers in the Willamette Valley of Oregon are still on track to begin Straw harvest in the middle of June.
